

Beechwood Congregational In Candy, Quilting Bee

Douglas, Connie Jones, Flossie Cogill, Jeanita Burnside, Marie Perroncello, Jean Bailey and Ruth Mitchell.

These women have another creative interest in quilt-making. Marion Ellis, a charming lady of 87 years, and treasurer of the group, has won many awards at the Marshfield Fair for her quilts and other needlework.

She has been the guiding light behind the crazy quilt now being pieced together from uneven patches of silk, satin and velvet. This reproduction of a Victorian quilt will be backed in silk, bound with ruffles and hand-tied. It will be sold at the antique show this summer.

The sales of beach glass candy and quilts help to support Ralph Alford Feather, Jr., a full-blooded Cherokee

Folk Music-festa

The South Shore Folk Music Club will be featuring Raw Honey on March 2, 1979 at 8 p.m. at the Trinity Episcopal Church, Highland St., Marshfield Hills. Raw Honey is a fine young bluegrass band from Cape Cod. The members of the band are David Dupree, Mark Trischka, Gregg Johnson, Jim Murray, Tom Haggarty and Lars. They play a wide variety of contemporary and traditional bluegrass tunes using many instruments such as the mandolin, guitar, fiddle, banjo, harmonica and stand-up bass.

Tickets are $2.50 per person, $2. for members. For more information about concerts, memberships or the Folk Music Club call: 837-0932 or 746-9120.

Indian. The Ladies Committee helps Ralph, a 10th grade student in Oklahoma, through the Christian Children's Fund, Inc.

The Beechwood Church is also known for its traditional Fish Chowder luncheons. Inclusion on the mailing list is sought after, as the dining-room seats only 120 people. All the food is homemade and the day before the luncheon the cooks peel potatoes, cook fish, freshly caught that morning, and set the tables. On the morning of the lunch the stock pot starts simmering with milk, cream, butter and onions. For $2.50 you have all you can eat of chowder, sea pilot crackers, pickles, coffee, tea and cake.

There are two annual suppers, the Harvest supper in the Fall and the Election supper each Spring. The Harvest includes an auction of handmade corn husk dolls, fudge, cookies, breads and preserves. You may find yourself returning home with the table decorations. All the food you can eat for $3.50 includes ham, potatoes, beets, green beans, coleslaw, rolls, butter, coffee, tea, gingerbread and whipped cream.

The Election Supper, now in the planning stage, invites local candidates for town offices of selectmen, & planning board, to chat with their friends and neighbors in an informal setting. Good food makes for good conversation. Whatever the menu, you can be sure it will be plentiful, homemade and delicious.

At the end of a pleasant candymaking evening, May Merritt showed us about her one hundred and twelve year old church, with its classic steeple and louvered windows. She proudly pointed out the exquisite handmade lace altar cloths and exuberant banners used in the services.

As we entered the church proper, she lighted up the charming, serene interior. The soft patina of the singleboard pews, transported by oxcart from the Sanford church in Bridgewater; the pulpit, a duplicate of one in Sturbridge
